WILSON "NOT A JUDGE OF MEN"

I am going to give my theory, but it is nothing more than a theory. In what he can do well, and likes to do, Mr. Wilson is tireless, but he is very indolent about what he is not profi-

He is not a judge of men; he has not the flair for it, and it is something that is not a matter of analysis. The selection of men is a labor to the president, and is a thing that has been largely attended to by others for him. Once the business is fixed, he is not going to unfix it. And afterwards, when the president sits around the table with men and comradeship sets up, the harder the critics pound him and them, the more immovable he becomes. They may be poor things, but they are his own.

I have never known a man who could put criticism on one side as serenely as Mr. Wilson can. He is implacable. "They say. What say they? Let them say." — Charles H. Grasty in the Atlantic Monthly.
